President's Greeting

Welcome to the Lincoln Gem and Mineral Club's 40th Annual Show and the Nebraska State Show for 1998. This show is made possible by hard working club volunteers, dealers, displayers, demonstrators, and by families, for families. So come and learn, enjoy and participate.

Gerald Moore, President

Show Chairman's Greeting

Whether this is your first or 40th visit with us, we are sure that you will find many new and interesting attractions as well as many time-tested standbys. Many of the proceeds from these shows go toward furthering earth science education in the community, state and nation. Your visits to our shows the past 39 years have helped to attain our goals and we thank you for your patronage and hope to see you at future shows. Thank you.

Ruby Facts

Ruby and sapphire are both aluminum oxide, Al_2O_3 , a mineral called corundum. On a hardness scale of 1 to 10, ruby is 9, just below diamond. Common ruby substitutes are glass, natural and synthetic spinel, tourmaline, and red garnets. Rubies are separated from these by their optical properties. Rubies crystallize in the hexagonal system and are commonly barrell shaped; they are uniaxial and some may be dichroic; that is, different wavelengths of light are selectively absorbed or transmitted by the crystal. Natural rubies and synthetic rubies have essentially identical properties; they are separated by the nature of the growth lines in the crystals and the kinds of tiny inclusions they contain. Rubies may show 6 rayed stars that are caused by planes of oriented, fine crystals or hollow tubes that reflect and refract light differently than the host crystal.

Rubies have been found in North Carolina in the United States but most gem rubies come from Burma or Sri Lanka. Ruby is the birthstone for July and is the stone used to celebrate 40th anniversaries. Thanks for helping us celebrate our 40th anniversary. We hope you enjoy this little memento.

Vera,

Thank you for all of your help
and service at the annual show.
your efforts are deeply appreciated and saved the show and club well. Thank you, again.

Roger
